Would you believe you can hear what's happening in a room in Los Angeles when you're in Chicago, would you believe New York, how about Maine?

You'd better believe it!

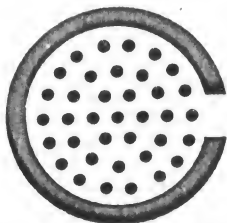

Continental's Infinity Transmitter now makes Coast to Coast surveillance a reality. If you can reach a telephone, you can hear what's happening anyplace that you can dial direct, whenever and as often as you wish. Installing Continental's Infinity Transmitter is a matter of minutes. It requires no special skills or tools. It's concealment is limited only to your ingenuity. It may even be hidden in a telephone itself, and there's no battery or power supply necessary. The Infinity Transmitter is a combination microphone amplifier, switching device and transmitter, housed in one case, that is capable of picking up conversations within a 40 foot radius of its placement and transmitting this information directly over telephone lines for UNLIMITED DISTANCES. This is done without disturbing the actual use of the telephone.
